Exmoor home learning

This week Exmoor class have writing their final stories inspired by Gregory Cool. They have all learnt how to include speech in their writing to engage the reader. In topic, we have been learning about what daily life was like for mayan people in different classes. Finally, in science the children have been creating their own creatures and explaining their adaptations. All of the children in Exmoor class have been working extremely hard, I am really proud of them all!

Reading

As we are approaching the end of term continue to read regularly. Complete a character profile for your favourite story character of from a book that you are reading at home currently.
