Dear Codden Class,

This week we have based lots of our learning on the story of The Very Hungry Caterpillar.

We read the story and sequenced it with picture cards. We have dressed up and role played the story out using key language that we can remember.

We have been creative with tissue paper making a collaborative piece of art in the style of Eric Carle. We looked at how the different colours can change when over lapped and pattern and the simple starts of symmetry.

We have been very excited to release real live caterpillars into a special net. We will observe them and watch to see what changes happen just like in the story. We wrote sentences about them.

We have continued to explore the teens numbers. This week we ordered them when they all got muddled up on a washing line!

If you feel you need to contact us via email for any reason then please use families@bishopstawton-primary.org to contact us. The class email account is just to be used for when we set home learning that requires work to be sent in.
